

GPDR information

If you get in touch with our Office via one of the contacts on our website, and through this you give us your personal data, you automatically agree that these details shall be stored, managed and processed with the aim of operating the website and contacting you, with respect to the regulations of Act CXII on information self-determination and freedom of information and EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

Our office, agreeing to the operative laws, shall handle personal data of nature and measure that is crucial to the aim of data management.

While managing personal data, the Office shall take care of the security of your data and take the provisions which secure that the collected, stored and managed data will be protected from the unauthorized access to them. Our Office dispose of the right technical background that shall prevent from destruction, unauthorized use and change of the data.

We inform you that our Office may only manage your personal data upon your permission or upon an obligation stipulated by the law. Accordingly, the term of data handling extends until the withdrawal of your permission or fulfilling the legal obligations. You are free to withdraw your permission any time by sending a message to ugyved@drkeszthelyioszkar.hu.

By sending a mail to the address mentioned above, you may ask for information about managing your data any time, as well as request the correction, change, deletion of the data or the restriction of data management. According to the informational self-determination you are entitled to require the cancellation and to exclaim against the management of your personal data.

With regard to the fact that the security of data transmitted via Internet cannot be completely warranted, the electronic contact with the Office mainly has informational purposes. Consequently, our Office does not take official obligations solely via electronic mail.

We inform you that our website uses cookies which principally simplify the conditions of visiting and using the website. The cookies contain information about the users (e.g. IP address) that relate to the contents used by you formerly. However, the data collected with today's technology cannot be used for identification without further identifying data and the Office will not connect the data collected by cookies with any other personal data that would enable identification. If your browser makes it possible, you can at any time forbid using cookies and you can delete the antecedents stored by your browser, which shall not affect the resort to the services provided by our website.

We kindly inform you that for remedy regarding the management, storage and use of your personal data, you may turn to the Hungarian National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information.

The detailed data protection regulation may be found on our Website.